

The Associated Press Collections Online is a publishing program focusing on making varied treasures of the Associated Press Corporate Archives, AP Images, and AP Archive available to libraries worldwide. Exploring the history and back story of the venerable Associated Press—decades' worth of wire copy, correspondence, memos, internal publications, and more—the Associated Press Collections Online meets the research needs of a variety of disciplines, and offers a cutting-edge platform designed to support that research.

ADVISORY BOARD

The Associated Press Collections Online advisory board consists of scholars in the disciplines of Journalism, History, and English. Additional ad hoc advisory groups were formed with scholars from disciplines such as Advertising and Public Relations, Communications, Sociology, and Political Science. Board members and advisory groups helped shape the collections, and advised on product features, design, and user experience. The noted scholars on the advisory board include:

Gene Allen

Associate Professor of Journalism, Ryerson University

Mia L. Anderson, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor, Advertising and Public Relations, University of Tampa

Giovanna dell'Orto

Associate Professor of Journalism, University of Minnesota

Rose De Luca

Lecturer, Emmanuel College Department of Sociology

Richard M. Filipink, Ph.D.

Associate Professor, Western Illinois University, History Department

Richard Fine

Professor of English, Virginia Commonwealth University

Douglas J. Fisher

Senior Instructor, University of South Carolina
Electronic and Print Journalism Sequence

Richard John

Professor, Columbia University School of Journalism

Ryan Lange, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of Communication, Alvernia University, Advisor, The Alvernian

Timothy Meyer

John P. Blair Endowed Chair in Communication Emeritus, University of Wisconsin - Green Bay
Communication

Gregory Moore, Ph.D

Chair, Department of History & Political Science, Notre Dame College
Director, Center for Intelligence Studies

Raymond Pun

Research and Collections Development Librarian, New York Public Library

Jonathan Silberstein-Loeb

Senior Lecturer in History, Keble College, Oxford University

Andris Straumanis

Associate Professor, University of Wisconsin-River Falls, Department of Journalism

Lydia Timmins, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor, University of Delaware, Mass Media and Communication, Journalism